

Cornell Labor Studies Graduates

Cornell Labor Studies graduates picked up their certificates on June 6th. From left to right: Paul Larrow Social Worker, Anthony Scruggs, Public Health Advisor, and James Gourdet, Public Health Sanitarian. Brother Scruggs reports that our graduates learned labor history, the defense of members including grievances and fair representation, resources for activism, and other topics including how the Taylor Law is administered, as well as key differences between public and private sector workers. Thank you for your investment in our Union's future!
